troot, little killed basques of plain thite crape and the bodies very pretty fintshed. A charming frock is of rinted crape in a new open weaving, ery licht, but absolutely uncrushable, nd a levely and most original model as a skirt of hand-embroidered white rope with bodies and tunic of rose-posted crape, vent and collar of finent and-embroidered lawn, and a girdle frose-colored taffeta.

Some Paris Medels.

Alany of their new modes for the amartest day occasions are mainly black; and here is the description of some examples seen; one of black taffets, with slightly drawed skirt, had trible basenes, the upper and lower ones of kilted tattata, the centre of striped rose and blue Roman silk. The wile centure was of the striped silk, and the hodice simply fashioned, had a little vest of fine lawn with small amber buttons. A black charmense thirt, drawed and slightly open at the back, was worn with a perfectly plain belted cent of navy serge, cut on beautiful lines, with the almond-shaped basene, and the belt at the waist, be it noted, not low down. Another black sown had a draped skirt of taffets and a picturescape tunk and hodice of motre brocaded with silver; while a most lovely rown was of dark blue broche, brocaded with noinsetting in an exont-site rose tint, the skirt year low with two deep pliese flources nesed one over the other, and a double tunic above.

A dainty summer Hig.

the other, and a double tunic above.

One Summer Big.

A dainty summer frock shows a billed skint of alain blue tolle de jour with crossed bodies and double tunic of white folle de jour printed with little formal desirus is rese and blue. The sash is of blue taffeta and the glisse neck fell and little tucked vest of white net. The hat is of taffeta with wired transparent brim of net missed on a bandeau, and two black feather factuates adjusted at executive angles.

In making bolled starch, leave a piece of soap in. The iron slips along more easily and a glossy effect is obstoce are reserved for evening tollettes.

tained.

Velveteen must be fromed on the wrong side, and not on a table, or the pile will be destroyed.

Silk dries quickly and should be ironed while extra damp. Lace must be ironed while wet, and through

MORNING AND AFTERNOON

And the Modish Gloves, Shoes and

And the Modish Gloves, Shoes and Stockings for Each.

A strong distinction is drawn between things suitable for morning wear and those adapted to the more ceremonious afternoon toilette. For the latter are reserved thin low-cut shoes and those with straps or large buckles, while the morning chaussure consists of shoes of more "sober" appearance and in stronger materials. In the same way, the white and pale-timted kid or suede glove is suitable for the afternoon, whereas the morning glove is of the substantial order.

Of reindeer, thick suede, gazelle or antelope skin, they are in tenes of gray, fawn or tan, with the patent clickers that are such an improvement on buttons.

Very fine stockings, too, are reserved.

A LINEN DRESS.

wear, and are smarter than suede. At present they are rather expensive.

Plaid skirts are seen with coats of clickers that are such an improvement on buttons.

MENU

Very fine stockings, too, are reserved an egg. Have ready nice light bread dough for the afternoon, while those worn in the morning are colored in tints much stronger than their material. Walking shoes of substantial black satin with ornate silver or paste.

STARLING'S FAMILY AFFAIRS

Just Why Does Mrs. Starling Rob
Her Own Nest?

A pretty little problem in natural history nearly always is encountered at this time of year on lawns near houses where starlings have built in the caves—the problem of the perfect starling's egg, lying on the grass, says the London Daily Express. On Sunday I saw a starling flying across a garden carrying one of its pale-blue eggs crosswise in its beak.

Why do these birds rob their own rests? Can the reason be that Father Starling thinks that Mother Starling is laying too many eggs? Does he associate the number of eggs laid with the number of hungry little beaks which it may be his duty in the future to help stuff with food?

Starlings are great family birds.
They are among the first birds to form into sociable flocks in the summer, besimning to congregate in July, and they are among the last of the birds which form winter flocks to dissolve into pairs, since they keep company well into April. The amount of straw a pair collect for a nest, and carelessly drop to litter the ground beneath, would fill a wheelbarrow.

A SARTORIAL SCREAM

A Lemon Yellow Crepe de Chine and

A Lemon Vellow Crepe de Chine and Moire Scheme.

The latest tunies (in dervish effect) reach below the knees, and, though they shorten the figure and cut it very often at an unbecoming angle, many women shut their eyes willingly to this fact as long as they are in the fashion. A tail, elegant woman wore such a dress in lemon-colored crepe de chine and moire silk of the supplest description.

en. Crepe de chine was used for the unic and sleeves proper, the latter tunic and sleeves proper, the latter fastened at the bust beneath small clusters of red velvet cherries without leaves; and one would hardly have imagined that this tunic measured quite five varieties.

ve yards in diameter.
Moire silk formed the cylinder-

A taffeta with the new tunio.

AN EVENING FROCK.

shaped skirt, and the broad girdle folded in front and tied in a voluminous bow and ends benind. The equare bib in watered silk appeared at the same angle at the back, disclosing the vest in accordion-pleated white mousseline de sole made with slightly puffed elbow sleeves.

This pretty woman were lemon-colored stockings and moire silk shoes; and her high coffure was powdered. An artificial beauty spot under one eye have her a fascinating eighteenth century touch.

The Copper Beech.

This is a tree!
And it is a gern.
It gladdens us in spring.
It is full in spring, in fact.
It shows the richest of sutumn cop-

Yet it is a glint with spring fresh-

This combination makes it a truly

This combination makes it a truly wonderful tree, it reloices in this name—fagus sylvatica follis attorubentibus.
Although the little chlorophyll grains containing green coloring matter are present, there is some strong pigment in the leaf sap which overcomes them, giving the deep rich color we are all hadmiring.

HE VANDERBILT HOTEL

Within a stone's throw of New York's greatest shopping district is located the Vanderbilt Hotel.

Situation unique on the high ground of Murray Hill, on New York's broadest avenue, overlooking to the northward the aristocratic residences and the famous Morgan Library; at the threshold of the shopping district; three minutes from three railway terminals, viz.: New York Central, New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Pennsylvania; at Thirty-fourth Street and the Thirty-third Street entrance to the Subway; convenient to the theatres. "In the world,

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who inherited the Vanderbilt fortune, has given up his town house and taken the entire nineteenth floor. He has had it fitted up on a scale of magnificence in keeping with

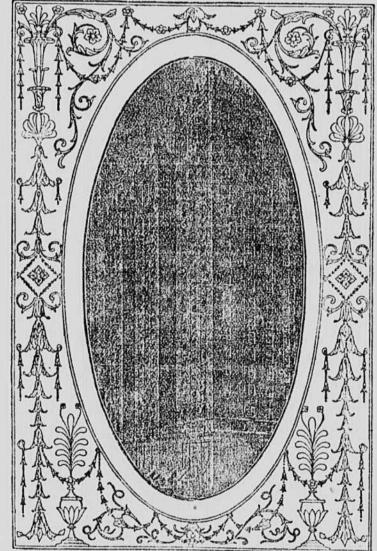

During the 1913 season, under the management of Walton H. Marshall, the Vanderbilt has taken the lead amongst New York hotels. It was chasen as the official headquarters for the Madison Square Garden Horse Show; the headquarters for the officials connected with the United States Naval Football Team for the annual game in New York, and also for the Automobile and Motorboat

There is something of unusual interest in a Kindergarten de Luxe which has been provided for the children guests.

"My aim in providing this institution-new to hotel life-was to make the environment of the hotel as attractive as possible for the children, whose parents either prefer it to housekeeping or desire

THE LOBBY. This inagnificent louve is decorated in Adams' style, th sculptured frieze cone in half-relief. It is luxurious the first comfortable chairs and sotas.

to have their children with them when visiting New York," said Manager Marshall

The idea is that of Helen Speer, who is in charge of this work at the Vanderbilt, and who has installed several of these novel schools for small children in private homes

A steamship service has been established for the guests, which provides for the securing of desirable accommodations when sailing. For instance, reservations are made for your steamer chair and rug, seat at the table, sees to it that the proper pieces of baggage are placed in your stateroom, saving you the many annoyances incident

Upon entering the hotel the lobby suggests the charm of the Riviera; this magnificent lounge is decorated in Adams' style. It is luxurious with its comfortable chairs and sofas. The garden-like restaurant opens from the lobby on the left, and carries out the same mental suggestion. The dignity of the whole is made more distinct by the sculptured frieze, done in half-relief, crowning the walls of the entire first floor. This frieze represents little children joyous in their different forms of play.

The decorations and furniture combine the comfort of the American manor house with the smartness of the eighteenth century, represented by the brothers Adam and their contemporary Hepplewhite. The central location of the hotel on a broad avenue makes it a favorite stopping place for visitors by automobile. Dressing rooms for automobilists-both ladies and gentlemen-will be found on the Mezzanine floor. Arrangement with a nearby garage provides for the care of the visitor's car. Touring cars may be rented by the hour, day or week at reasonable rates.

The self-contained suite of private apartments is reserved for exclusive entertainments, dinners, bridge parties, weddings and dances. This apartment is virtually a Fifth Avenue residence set within the confines of the hotel.

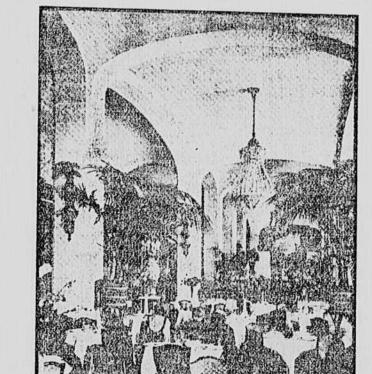

The Della Robbia Restaurant, with its gallery, Italian vaulted roof and frescoed walls, is New York's most luxurious and comfortable restaurant. This room is carried out in the blue and white sculptured pottery ware that Lucia Della Robbia and his brother used in the adornment of the Italian churches of their time; the color of blue and white rests one's eyes after the glare of the dusty street. The cuisine and service of the hotel have already made this room famous.

An invitation is extended to inspect the various departments of the hotel, particularly the kitchens and wine cellars. Upon request guides will be sent from the office TARIFF.

Private suite for entertainments, tariff upon request.

Single room, with bath, $3, $4, $5, $6 per day. Double room, with bath, $5, $6, $7, $8 per day,

Double bedroom, boudoir dressing room and bath, $7, $10, $12 Suites parloir, bedroom and bath, $12, $15, $18 per day.

PALM GARDEN AND TEA ROOM. The garden-like restaurant opens from the lobby on the left, and is decorated in similar manner. Music from 12:30 to 2:30; 4 to 6, and 7 to 9.